STUDENT LIFE

Some events were special to this '78-79 year.

The football team shared the league title and went on to state semifinals.

A Sweetheart's Ball planned for February was finally held in March. Hopefully the dance will become a Valentine tradition for the sophomore class.

A college-type schedule of classes for the high school was tried as an experiment the second semester. If it proves to be successful, it may be used in the fall.

New equipment included a microwave oven for the home economics room, a microfiche for the library and a tennis court for the school and community.

Best of all, some said, were the disco lessons held in the fall for students, faculty and community.

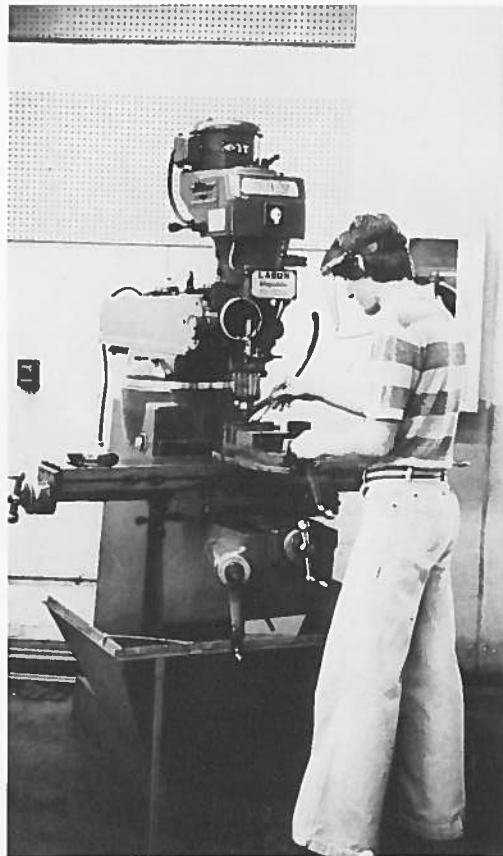

Susan Haskey and Jamie White show off their friends Mak and Zak.

*In time of your needs,
When you've fallen apart,
Your friend comes along,
With world's biggest heart,
Being so warm, thoughtful and dear
Always a friend year after year.*

Decision Makers for Student Body

Student Council worked on changing the constitution, in the area of student rights and responsibilities. Time was taken to observe PeEll's student body, and plans were made to visit other schools.

The council authorized the purchase of Varsity boys' basketball uniforms. They also discussed the purchase of a weight machine, but the idea was dropped.

ORGANIZATIONS

Headaches-Headlines-Deadlines

Journalism had a difficult year with production. Students with time, creativity and willingness seemed impossible to find, although the yearbook and several newspapers were completed.

Newspaper editor was Jamie White, yearbook editor Cynthia Brakus. Alice Bingham advised both.

Cynthia Brakus attended the four-day yearbook workshop in August at Providence Heights near Issaquah.

(1) Second semester reporters Rick Pennington, Scott McDougall, John Hogarty ham it up with advisor Bingham and assistant HIGHLINE editor Julie Binkley. (2) Liz Bogar focuses in on her subject. (3) Running off a copy of his assignment is Barry Burnette. (4) Jamie White types a stencil for THE HIGHLINE. (5) Working on yearbook layouts are staffers Lyssa White, Cynthia Brakus and Tove Johnson

Drama Class Explores Various Acting Forms

"Make-Up Artist" and "Romantic Conspiracy" were the two plays produced by the Drama class, first semester.

Two radio plays, "The Invisible Man" and "Sherlock Holmes and the Red-Headed League" was their second semester project.

The Drama class chose as their title, "RAIN VALLEY PLAYERS."

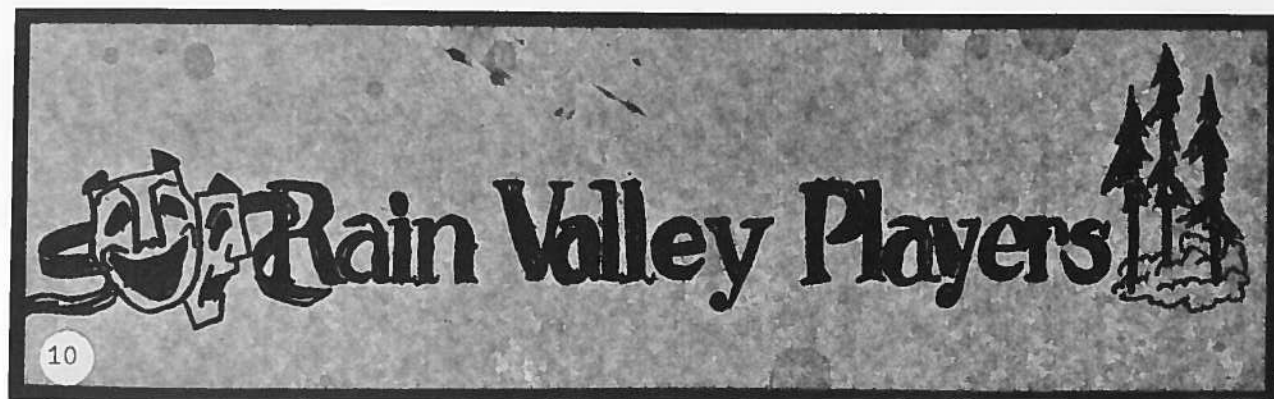

(1) Mimest Francisco Reynders doing part of his act at an assembly. (2) Veronica Brakus getting into Drama. (3) Jackie Helberg doing her act of buying a wedding ring. (4) Director Dwight Herren working on props. (5) Tracy Elder doing his D.J. act.

(6) A scene from "Romantic Conspiracy." (7) and (8) Second year Drama students Cynthia Brakus and Jim Pauley during their play, "The Make-Up Artist." (9) Cynthia Brakus entertains at assembly. (10) The new Drama class logo.

While Snafu played the beat everyone practised their Disco.

Homecoming took place in the old gym on November 4 with Rick McDougall as Master-of-Ceremonies. The sophomore class repainted and decorated to the theme of "It's a Long Way There."

Cheerleaders Active in Boosting Spirit

Devotion, pep assemblies, signs, routines, fun, excitement, responsibility, and never ending practice--all make the life of a cheerleader.

For the first time in many years the Loggers were cheered on by both a Varsity and a J.V. pep squad.

Tove Johnson and Jerri Ancich attended cheerleader camp at Evergreen State College for one week in the summer which helped both squads.

~ Sporting one of the best season records ever, the Loggers had high hopes of traveling to the Kingdome and the B-8 state championship.

They eliminated Clallam Bay, 20-16, in a snowy, windy quarter-final play-off game at Clallam Bay which put them one step nearer the Kingdome.

Their hopes were dashed when the Oakville Acorns slipped past them, 22-16, in a hard fought semi-final play-off game on Aberdeen's Stewart Field.

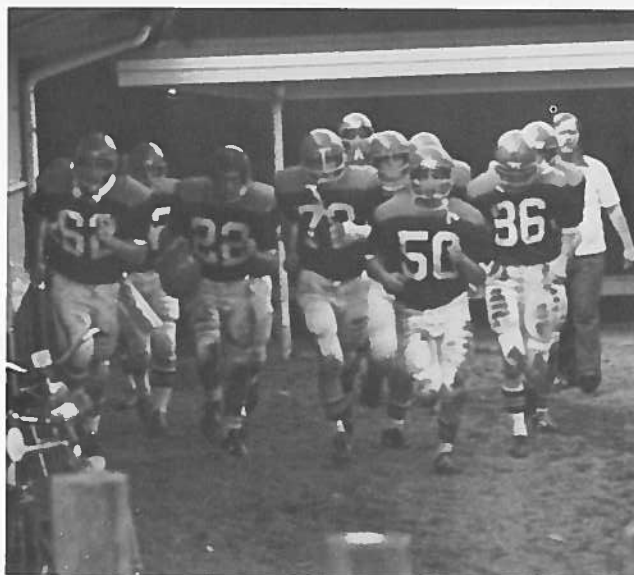

During the game the team made a determined goal line stand and held Oakville below its rushing and scoring average.

Wishkah's offensive play included 63- and 31-yard touchdown runs by senior halfbacks John Clevenger and Marty Walkama.

Loggers Win One, Lose Two at District

The Loggers ended the season with 12-11 overall record and 6-4 league record.

They went to District where they won their first game against LaCenter 62-54. In their second game, South Bend overpowered them 70-58. The final game against Toutle Lake was close, but the Ducks went on to eliminate them 64-52.
